RITA. This could be the perfect location for one of our scenes! Imagine it, secret agents burst out from behind the Christmas trees—

(NARRATOR 2 adjusts the Christmas tree.)

—tree—and then my character kills them all right here.

BRIDGETTE. That sounds beautiful.

RITA. It's a lot of pressure being a role model for millions of girls. Most of them can't even kill thirty or forty ninjas.

BRIDGETTE. Most of them wouldn't even try.

RITA. Exactly. Do you see Sven?

BRIDGETTE. He's still parking the truck.

RITA. Please don't say anything about me being a huge movie star. I don't know want him to treat me differently. It's so difficult being famous, especially when people don't know you're famous.

BRIDGETTE. Ri-ight.

RITA. You know what's the worst thing about being super famous, and wealthy, and really good-looking?

(Short pause)

And talented?

(Short pause)

And funny?

(Short pause)

And good-looking?

BRIDGETTE. What?

RITA. It's lonely. I can't find Mr. Right. Because I'm always worried he's going to be interested in being Hollywood Royalty and not the real me.

BRIDGETTE. What is the real you?

RITA. I wish I knew.
